

Register of Gifts and Hospitality 2025/26

Employee Name	Position Title	Interest Description	Comments
Day, Mrs. Emily Kate	Community Support Worker - SNM058	A patient insisted on gifting myself and a colleague a watch for helping them at their home. We insisted that it was not needed but they would not let us leave until we took the watch. It is a small rose gold female watch with gems on the watch face. The patient also insisted on gifting two coin collection books, to be able to read about collectable coins as per their interests.	Watches and books are left at work base (Ellis Centre).
Ker, Dr Suzy	Consultant Psychiatrist	Psychiatric text worth about £10	Book from patient hand delivered to my team office by a colleague, later patient/carer stated it was to thank the team and hoped it would go to the department. Donated on their behalf to TEWV library, thank you letter sent.
Marley, Miss Kendra Ann	Head of Risk Management	On attending a sponsored event (see previous declaration re risk reimagined 2026), I 'won' a prize draw of £100 in gift cards. I subsequently split these with my colleague to 'compensate' for the expenses of 2 x evening meals in London.
Peacock, Reverend Graham Philip	Chief Chaplain	A service user asked me to take a bottle of red wine that they had been gifted for Christmas and which they didn't drink. I declined, but they proffered it again and it seemed churlish to refuse.	Total value new would be around £10.
Peacock, Reverend Graham Philip	Chief Chaplain	Gift of large box of 'Celebrations' (value £5-£10) from a patient in the community.
Peacock, Reverend Graham Philip	Chief Chaplain	Gifted a bottle of wine (c£8) and box of biscuits (Ec8?) by a service user.	Tried to refuse, but person wanted me to take them as they are trying to stop consumption of alcohol and excess calories.
Thompson, Miss Emma Louise	Healthcare Assistant / Trainee (Inpatients) - SNM006	A patient insisted on gifting myself and a colleague a watch for helping them at their home. We insisted that it was not needed but they would not let us leave until we took the watch. It is a small rose gold female watch with gems on the watch face.	Watches have been left at workbase (Ellis Centre)
